Fort Mason Center Partners with La Cocina

As part Fort Mason Center's mission to reflect the evolving cultural fabric of San Francisco a relationship has been established with La Cocina, a nonprofit incubator kitchen, to support budding low-income entrepreneurs. The campus has been enhanced on Friday, Saturday and Sunday by the presence of Chaac Mool. The Vazquez family recently sent this letter to Fort Mason Center translated by La Cocina.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to allow our business, Chaac Mool, to sell our Yucatecan Food at Fort Mason Center.

Chaac Mool is the ancient Mayan god of rain and inspiration for us in our business. I am Maria de la Luz and I am the owner of this business. My husband Luis is the chef and our children Lizbeth and Luis Jr. both work with us at the booth helping to cook and taking orders from the customers.

Since the summer we have been introducing people who work in the area or are passing by to the food Luis grew up eating and making in the state of Yucatan in Mexico. We cook all of our products ourselves and take pride in the ingredients that we use – Niman Ranch pork, organic masa, and market fresh produce. Our recipe for cochinita pibil—slow roasted pork marinated in achiote—has been passed down for generations in Luis's family. We cook all of our food at La Cocina, a nonprofit incubator kitchen located in the Mission District. They help entrepreneurs like me get started. You can find out more about them at www.lacocinasf.org ; it is an honor for us to be able to serve this food to you.

It makes us so happy that we have gotten such a warm reception from both Fort Mason Center staff and our new customers. It has always been a dream of ours to introduce our food to San Francisco and without your support and this opportunity it would not have been possible.

Thanks to Chaac Mool's new location at Fort Mason Center, our family has been able to spend much more time together and Luis, who used to work full shifts at two different restaurants, has now resigned in order to focus on growing our family business and expanding our offerings to include more catering and special dinners.

Thank you again for this opportunity, it has truly changed our lives. We look forward to Chaac Mool continuing to grow and thrive as part of the Fort Mason Center Community.

Thank You!
Maria de La Luz Vazquez, Luis Vazquez,
Luis Vazquez Jr., Lizbeth Vazquez

For catering or event information, please call Maria or Luis at 510-508-3690 or email maria.chaacmool@gmail.com or luis.chaacmool@gmail.com.
